SAVES COPPER IMPROVES.

Jack Bolin, state mine inspector, in a letter to friends in the Warren District, states that he has just completed a tour of the northern tier of counties and that from his observations he is able to state positively that the mine outlook for the future is much brighter. He says that all the mines in the north are at present time working, and that most of them are adding to their forces slowly but surely. The copper prospects for the state, says Bolin, are better, but they are picking up slower than are the other mining industries. The gold mines of the north are showing special activity, says the mine inspector, and there are hundreds of prospectors who have taken opportunity of the dull times to locate and work new properties. Some of them are showing good ore, and there are prospects of a real gold boom in several of the northern districts.
